

We must carefully examine broadcast ownership for the simple reason that we live in a democracy.

We want to be able to get different points of view from our media. If broadcast ownership gets to the point where one person or group has majority access to the nations public it can and will be used to improperly influence public opinion. I am already seeing this when I turn on channel 5 where you can currently watch Pro war commercials full of propaganda for war in Iraq. We may as well move to Iraq and get news from a dictatorship environment. So, please evaluate this issue carefully, and keep in mind the United States is and must remain a democracy.

Sincerely,
Karin J. Dorn
